

BRIGHT PROSPECT DONOR PRIVACY POLICY

Overview

When you support Bright Prospect, you help bright, determined, low-income students achieve a college degree, and with that, to open opportunities for them that without your help, they can only dream about.

Bright Prospect is entirely dependent on the generosity of individual donors and philanthropic foundations.

What Information Do We Collect About You and How Do We Use it?

In order to be able to acknowledge your donation, which is tax deductible, we must collect complete contact information for you, including your name, mailing address and email address. We also use your address information to send you updates about our program and our students' accomplishments, and to request your continued support.

When and How Do We Share Your Information?

Regardless of whether you provide your personal information through our website or by physical mail, Bright Prospect does not share, give, sell or otherwise divulge any of your personal information to any third party.

Unless you specifically opt-in (which we would appreciate) we will not list your name as a donor anywhere on our website or in promotional documents. If you do give us permission, we will list your name, but no other identifying information, as a donor to Bright Prospect.